Section 1: Keeping people safe.

A lot of crime now happens online.

Police Scotland will work with other organisations and work with new technology.

We will work with community planning partnerships.

These let police and local public services work together to use money and staff in the best way.

We will:

- Keep people safe in the real world and online.

- Have services that work together to keep people safe.

- Work on prevention – stopping crime from happening.

Section 2: Communities are at the centre of policing.

The role of policing is to keep people safe wherever they live.

Police Scotland must meet the needs of all people and all communities as they change and grow.

This includes helping people to stay safe online.

We will:

- Understand our local areas.
- Give local areas services that meet their needs.
- Support our local area with knowledge from local and national experts.
An expert is someone who knows a lot about a subject.
- Support communities when they change and grow.

Section 3: How we involve you.

Policing happens with consent.
This means people agree to policing.

New technology means we can communicate with people in different ways.

We must make sure we have the right balance between giving people privacy and making sure they are protected.

The Police might not always be the best people to respond.

We will work with others to agree when Police Scotland will get involved.

We will:

- Make sure there is a balance between privacy and protection.
- Protect the public with services that are accessible and work well.

- Work with local groups, public services, private organisations and voluntary organisations to support our communities.
